YOUTH IS INDIFFERENT TO EDUCATION

PRESENT METHODS STIFLING DEARTH OF BEAUTY PREVAILS

Younger Generation Organizing Its Social Life In Its Own Way, Educators Are Told—Claude Bragdon, of Rochester, N. Y., Author and Architect, Says Theater Is Help—Play Spirit Needs Inspiration To Higher Flights.

Modern youth is cynical and indifferent under a kind and manner of education which is inadequate to its intellectual, emotional and practical needs, Claude Bragdon, Rochester, author and architect, charged Friday night at the second general session of the sixth annual Ohio educational conference, being held at Ohio State university.

"Our mental and emotional life," he observed, "like our physical, is subject to starvation and poisoning and our present state of disease in the world of thought and feeling is perhaps partly occasioned by the dearth of beauty everywhere."

"The soul of man, which craves beauty as its daily food, now finds itself stifling in a miasma of self-created ugliness arising from the ceaseless churning of mere dollars in fields, factories and workshops, and in those urban temples for the transaction of sharp bargains whose doors are always open and whose windows are always alight," he asserted.

"We of the passing generation have grown accustomed to these conditions because they are of our own making, and tho we suffer from them in obscure ways, we cannot cure them because we, ourselves, are infected; the consciousness which produced those cancers on the countryside which we call cities, polluting the air, poisoning the streams, prostrating the trees, killing the grass, filling the ear with horrid noises and the eye with ugly sights cannot reserve itself all at once."

On rare occasions when some desire for beauty agitates civic consciousness Mr. Bragdon observed, such desire is capitalized to the end of raising rents and taxes to pay for civic centers and sanitary suburbs less sordid, but hardly less ugly, than the old. Modern cities, he went on, are monstrous, ill-conditioned growths in which the evils of individualism are written in giant characters across the sky.

"The younger generation," he said, "is coming to organize its social life in its own way, sometimes in grotesque ways, respecting much of the education, occupation and entertainment offered them by their elders, often to the latter's bewilderment and chagrin. "But the initial error was with the elders. The one thing age has no right to do is to cast youth in the same mould in which it was cast."

Youth, he pointed out, is trying to find its own antidotes to ugliness and to learn cooperation. It is small wonder, he conceded that parents and teachers "view with alarm" the wild and wanton straying of youthful feet in fields forbidden to the elder generation.

So long as youth goes forward confidently and gladly, he declared, it probably is going in the right general direction, if not by the most direct route.

"Just now young people appear to be going forward confidently and gladly to a greater joy in life," he observed. "If this sometime assumes the aspect of too deep an immersion in such things as sex, jazz and boot-legger's gin, it may mean only that they have wandered, but are still bent for heaven."

"In seeking, however blindly, love and joy and beauty, they are serving a nobler God than the god of bargains. This they obscurely know is the reason why coercion, criticism, appeals.

starvation and ridicule are powerless to divert them from their quest of beauty."

Youth's search for beauty, he insisted, is "not met and ministered to by the present educative system wherein schools are like boxes of silkworms, fed on professor-plucked mulberry leaves of learning, rather than like beehives in a garden of live blooms from which each pupil extracts his own particular honey which both feeds him and adds to the common store."

INSTALLED X-RAY MACHINE.

Dr. Gay L. Hitler has installed an X-Ray machine and is the first local dentist to install a scientific surgical apparatus. The idea is to show teeth structures, location of a fractured bone, diseased conditions and locating foreign objects that have lodged in the teeth.

Miss Nelle Anderson, assistant to Dr. Hitler, will spend a week in Columbus, to take a special course of instructions in X-Ray procedure, and the working of the machine.

Prisoners Arraigned.

Paul Tudor and Charles McGlone, prisoners indicted on seven counts by the April grand jury were arraigned before Judge Curtin Friday morning and plead not guilty. Judge Curtin appointed Judge I. N. Abernethy to defend the prisoners and their trial was set for Monday, April 26.

Mrs. Gus McNaughten, of Columbus underwent a serious operation this week at Grant hospital, Columbus. Dr. I. B. Harris performed the operation. Mrs. McNaughten before her marriage was Miss Jeannette Hawks, of this city.

GET ROBBER CHIEF

The above shows William J. (Three Fingers) White, notorious bank robber and killer, who was captured by Chief of Detectives Schoemaker and a squad of Chicago detectives in a roadhouse. A few hours later he was identified as the leader of the eight bandits who held up the International Harvester plant at Chicago a few weeks ago and escaped with $80,000. He has been sought on a number of murder and holdup charges.

To Attend Ball Game

Minerva, O., April 10, (UP) Plans were made at the regular meeting of the Hi-Y club here, to attend a baseball game between Cleveland and Chicago on May 1, at Cleveland.

The members of the club will also visit the broadcasting station WEAR at Cleveland and the Union Trust company. The evening will be spent at a theater. The trip will be made by auto.

HAPPENINGS IN OUR STATE

Taken Direct From Wires
By Correspondents of the United States Press
Association.

Granville, Ohio, April 10, (UP)—A book of poems entitled, "Poems of Friendship," recently published, is the work of a former Denison university student, Linden E. Brooks. While in school here Brooks was a prominent and popular member on the campus.

Mansfield, O., April 10 (UP)—Population of the Mansfield reformatory has reached the highest peak in its history, according to Superintendent T. C. Jenkins, 2122 prisoners being enrolled.

Columbus.—Passing for the first time the $50,000,000 mark, assets of the Ohio Industrial commission today reached a new high mark, according to State Treasurer Day. The fund which was created by the legislature more than 12 years ago, has earned nearly $2,500,000 in interest on bonds.

Yorkville—1700 employees of the tin plate plant of the Wheeling Steel corporation, will receive between $145,000 and $150,000 in pay, the largest amount since the end of the post-war boom.

Cleveland—Dorothy Trepozinski, 2, was just able to reach some "candy" lying on the table at her home here. Today she was dead, the result of swallowing 12 medicinal tablets, prescribed by physicians for her mother.

Cleveland—Formulating a list of rules tending to better liquor enforcement conditions, the Cuyahoga county association of justices of the peace went on record as against any home being entered without a search warrant. They are also against promiscuous night-riding, and they will furnish names of all dry raiders to the association and county prosecutor.

Columbus—Despondent over ill health, Earl J. Riffe, 46, hanged himself at his home. He formerly was a machinist for a local firm.

Columbus—A general tie-up of building operations loomed today with the scheduled walkout of 1800 union carpenters on Monday. Six other building trades unions are none too friendly with contractors over wage increases also, it was said. Carpenters are demanding an increase of from 12 to 25 cents.

PROSPECT FOR FRUIT IS VERY ENCOURAGING

Columbus, O., April 10 (UP)—Fruit prospects in Ohio are unusually good this year with full crops indicated in so far as early indications are reliable. The prospects are especially good for both apples and peaches in the section bordering on Lake Erie, it was announced.

Winter killing of peaches occurred in other parts of the state, declared Charles V. Truax, state director of agriculture, and is very noticeable in central Ohio. Apple prospects, however, he said, are uniformly good throughout the state with the exception of southeastern Ohio, due to drought there last summer, according to state agricultural statisticians.

KILLED IN QUARREL.

Toledo, Ohio, April 10, (UP)—A quarrel here resulted in the shooting of Abe Lubitsky, 19, who was fatally wounded by Albert Collins, negro federal prohibition agent of Cleveland. Collins, who had been detailed here for several weeks, arranged a "deal" with Lubitsky to purchase some alleged whisky for $70. But while Collins was notifying his office, Lubitsky said to have struck the prohibition agent with a chair and fled to the street.

Collins chased his assailant and upon reaching the sidewalk, fired two shot, hitting Lubitsky with a bullet in his back.

DEATH OF INFANT.

Robert Gale, the four day old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rothe died Friday morning at 4 o'clock. The child was buried this afternoon in Forest cemetery.

NOT A CAKE

This photograph, taken of a bride of the Black forest district of Germany, is very interesting. What looks like a cake is a crown or headdress 12 inches in diameter and 5 inches high, weighing from 6 to 10 pounds, consisting of 10 rows of glass balls and beads in various colors and sizes, embellished with small mirrors and other glittering ornaments. It is worn by all maidens at festivities such as church, family, christening, wedding and social affairs. A bride wears this from early morning until the church ceremony and wedding again until ten at night, when she changes housewifely garb to show her submission to her husband.

JOYOUS TIME LEGIONAIRES AND AUXILIARY

House Warming at Memorial Hall Proved to be a Most Delightful Affair.

The house warming given by the American Legion and Auxiliary Friday evening at the Memorial hall was a decided success, socially and financially. Nearly five hundred people were in attendance.

The auditorium and post room were artistically decorated in the National colors under the direction of E. C. Ebert, chairman. The guests enjoyed themselves playing cards and dancing. Preceding the dancing and card playing, Mrs. Carl Seitz gave a victrola concert.

Visitors were present from Columbus, Greenfield, Chillicothe, Lancaster and Kingston. Gene Fowler, of Greenfield, a veteran of the World's war and a member of Company G, 166th regiment Rainbow division, was present, and was cordially greeted by his many friends. Mr. Fowler, who was made blind in the service, took up poultry culling in vocational training, and has become an expert along these lines.

Prizes were awarded the card players in their several classes. The prizes won by the out of town guests were: Ladies, Mrs. A. J. Cahill, of Chillicothe, and gentleman, A. L. Segal, Chillicothe.

Bridge; ladies, Miss Elizabeth Dunlap; gentleman, Louis Holderman.

Five Hundred; ladies, Mrs. Elliott Crites; gentleman, George P. Foreman.

The High Jinks orchestra, of Columbus, furnished the music for the dancing portion of the program and was thoroughly enjoyed. At no time from the opening to the close of the evening's entertainment did the floor lack for dancers. Both the old and new dances were on the program.

Mack Parrett as general chairman, was ably assisted by Orin W. Dreisbach and John Bolender.

John J. Brehmer, the florist, donated an armful of carnations, which were in the post room decorations.

The prizes were donated by Sen-senbrenner's and Brunner's jewelry stores, the Joseph Clothing company, H. B. Colwell's clothing store, Friedman's millinery store, Wittich's confectionery and the Crist department store and Grand-Girard's drug store.

The American Legion and Auxiliary are elated over the success of the entertainment and the welcome the public gave them. They wish to thank the press and the Seitz music store for their kind assistance in promoting and making the affair a success.

The members of the reception committee and the hostesses who received the guests at the hall were: Post Commander Joe M. Lynch; adjutant, Christian C. Schwarz; General George Florence, Sheriff Robert Young, Walter A. Downing, Charles Gusman, Charles Smith, Dr. H. D. Jackson, Joseph P. Noecker, Howard Orr, Lawrence Goeller, John Goeller Jr., May C. Seyfert, John A. Ryan and Lawrence Johnson.

Tweed Suits Are Shown for Spring

Navy Blue, Beige and Pale Shades of Rose and Pink Are Favored.

By all the finery that flutters in the Southern breezes, gray and green are leading colors, especially for daytime wear. More shades of green than nature ever essayed to use in her decorative schemes are seen and in all popular fabrics. But that's not saying that other colors are out of the picture, notes a fashion correspondent in the Kansas City Star, for every observer of fashion knows that green combines delightfully with nearly every other color under the sun. Fashion will not overlook this opportunity to use other colors. The same is true of gray. The pinky beige lingers out of popularity and service to womankind rather than for any new note it serves in the mode.

Gray is one color that requires an ensemble of complete harmony. It brings us back to an increasing vogue for gray hosiery, something lighter than the gunmetal shade and partaking of fleshy tones so much a part of the nude-shade hosiery. Paris has not given up beige and flesh-colored hosiery by any means, but it must be conceded that many another shade may be worn and still be in good taste; even black hosiery has its sponsors by women who are regarded sartorially correct on every occasion.

Importance in colors is given to chartreuse, which, by the way, is a much-abused word this season, as all shades of yellowish green now come under that name. Pale blue, lavender, pink and delicate yellows are very popular both in taffeta for evening and in wool for sports. Jersey, knitted fabrics and tweed all come in these delicate colors.

The new tweeds are as varied as the silks and crepes, and it goes without saying quite as lovely in their way. Whether you choose the safest of all shades, navy blue, or a flattering beige or the still more flattering pale shades of rose or pink, rest assured that fashion is with you.

The long tunic frocks for daytime wear are leaders in their particular fields of dress.

It was O'Rossen who made famous the boyish suit of a few seasons past, one that never has quite faded from the picture since that time.

Its tremendous popularity may be repeated again if the O'Rossen models meet with the same approval of seasons ago.

Black Crepe de Chine, Navy, Tan, Printed Crepe

Black crepe de chine and navy and tan printed crepe are pleasingly combined in a pretty frock for springtime. The tie and cuffs of the printed silk are effective touches.

Crepe de Chine, Voile, Chiffon for Lingerie

Crepe de chine, tricot voile and chiffon are all much in favor for lingerie. Real lace dyed in deep ochre shades trims the classical flesh-pink underwear, while when more original colors are chosen, such as almond green, pale blue, mauve or yellow, the lace is often dyed to match the fabric. Black lingerie always enjoys a certain vogue, and in chiffon or georgette amply trimmed with lace it is exquisite this season. Inset points and incrustations of lace that are turreted or vanished are very popular. Sometimes black lingerie is trimmed with black lace, chandilly or d'Alencon being the favorites, although many women prefer the contrast of light ochre.

The printed chiffon cruse has also spread to lingerie. One of the prettiest sets seen in Paris this season was made of white chiffon scattered with a field flower design in blues, reds and yellows, trimmed with three triangles of fine black lace, giving that amusing little flare at the hem of the chemise and knickers that follows the dress line.

WASHINGTON SPECIALS

Washington, April 8.—(UP.)—Modification of the Volstead act would be a good thing for prohibition enforcement, District Attorney Emory R. Buckner of New York told the senate prohibition investigation committee today.

Buckner argued that co-operation between states and federal government was necessary and that he believed that if congress would permit his state to define the alcoholic content of beverages the state would help enforce the law.

"It would be a perfectly rational step in prohibition enforcement to modify the Volstead law to dangle such a bait before the states to get their co-operation," he said.

"If the one half of one per cent provision of the Volstead act was eliminated and the state permitted to define what is an intoxicating beverage, I believe you would develop the necessary partnership between the federal government and the state."

Unless this is done Buckner said, present court facilities in New York state alone would have to be increased $75,000,000 a year by adding 150 additional courts to handle prohibition cases.

Buckner's testimony was given after George Brennan, Democratic leader of Chicago and Anton J. Cermack, president of Cook county commission, authorized publication of statements to the committee, pointing out increases in insanity and crime in their part of the country.

Anti-Saloon League Leader In "Dutch" With Senator Couzens.

Washington, April 8.—(UP.)—Senator Couzens, Republican, Michigan and Wayne B. Wheeler, Anti-Saloon League leader here, are decidedly at odds, as the result of Couzens' refusal to preside in a committee room where Wheeler was visiting.

Wheeler came back today with a statement referring to Couzens as "the five per cent beer advocate from a dry state," and denying that Couzens made his hostile comment to Wheeler's face.

"Senator Howell, Republican, Nebraska, asked me to the meeting. * * * I was informed that the committee would be executive. I then left. Senator Couzens did not make the statement while I was in the room."

CONVENTION

Columbus, April 8.—(UP.)—The Ohio State Pharmaceutical Association in convention here this week, decided to:
Eliminate the position of assistant pharmacist.
Educate the people into distinguishing between pharmacies and "drug stores."
Wait until June before they decide on the legality of the new 3.75 per cent malt extract.
Ask a law to prevent the registration of new assistant pharmacists.
In defining the difference between a pharmacy and a drug store, the pharmacists explained a drug store is a place where package medicines are sold and a pharmacy is a place where prescriptions are filled.
The people must be educated to this difference, they declared.

NEW TORCH MELTS
STEEL UNDER WATER

Will Be Used to Open Hull of Wrecked Submarine.

New York.—A torch that can melt and cut steel at any depth under water has been perfected by the United States navy, and will be used in opening the sunken submarine S-51, now on the floor of the ocean off Block Island. Commander Ellsberg of the Brooklyn navy yard has told a reporter.
Such a torch is hailed as a valuable aid in cutting through the steel plates of submarines and submarine compartments. It was the lack of an adequately powerful torch that prevented the piercing of the submarine S-51 last fall, after it was rammed and shipwrecked by the steamer City of Rome in September. At that time acetylene torches were used, and they were practically useless when forced to pressure of more than 20 pounds under water.
The new torch consists of jets of hydrogen and oxygen which emanate from two separate sleeves to the tip of the torch. From a third sleeve compressed air is applied at any depth under water it forces an air bubble to surround the hydrogen and oxygen. Thus protected from the water, the fire within the bubble of air is injected into the steel. It usually reaches a temperature of 5,000 degrees Fahrenheit, according to Commander Ellsberg.
The steel plate melts. From the time the flame is applied the steel plate, usually an inch thick or less on submarines, can be cut at the rate of a foot a minute.
The navy has been experimenting on the torch for several years. When the submarine S-51 sank, the torch was in the experimental stage.
With the aid of the torch, it will be possible to get into the innermost compartments of the submarine. Holes will be burned in the hull of the submarine, as well as in the walls of the compartments, and the compressed air will be forced into the boat, thus driving out the water and making the craft more buoyant.
The bodies of 24 men are still in the submarine, it is believed, and these will be taken out probably before the submarine is lifted to the surface.

READY TO GIVE UP
MULES FOR FLIVVER

"As Braxton Beller was driving to town tuther day, with his wife and nine children in the waggia," related Toke Sagg of Sandy Marsh, "a feller came ripping around a bent in the road straddle of a bull calf. The mules whirled, overturned the waggia, flung the folks out with a can of milk and twenty dozen eggs on top of 'em, and run away, dragging Braxton behind 'em. When he finally got 'em stopped and driv' 'em back to whar they'd left the waggia he found everything smashed and the family daubed with stuf from head to foot. Then whilst he was trying to sorter fix up things a little one of the enased mules kicked him and broke his arm. He says he's going to swap off the mules and get a flivver. He can have just about as much trouble in less than half of the time."
"Yes, but what about the feller that was ridin' the bull calf?" asked an acquaintance.
"I hain't the slightest idea. Bear didn't tell me, and I forgot to ask."

LARGE QUANTITY

Of "Booze" Becomes Property of the Government.

Toledo, April 8.—(UP.)—Two hundred and forty-seven cases of whisky seized in Bucyrus, O., six years ago, became government property today under an order of Federal Judge John M. Killits of Cleveland.

The government had sued for possession of the liquor, claiming the owners—George Sullivan and Harry Lockhart, of Bucyrus—intended selling it.
The whisky, all of pre-Volstead vintage, has been in a warehouse here since it became involved in litigation. Its value is placed at several thousand dollars.

WHERE RUSSIA HALTED FOR HALF A CENTURY
Oxus River Long Russian Afghan Boundary.

Washington.—The world is taking a new interest in the Oxus river, which figured in the war news back in the days of Alexander and his conquering generals. Recent dispatches report the seizure by Soviet soldiers of an Afghan post on the river. The region is described in the following bulletin from the Washington headquarters of the National Geographic society:
"The Oxus river has the distinction of standing longer as a Russian boundary in southwest Asia than any other natural feature," says the bulletin. "One of the outstanding bits of empire building during the Nineteenth century was the glacierlike but sure advance of Russia toward India, an advance that profoundly affected British diplomacy and kept British military men constantly on a nervous tension. Khokand was gobbled up in 1863, Bokhara in 1868 and Khiva in 1873. Some people had visions of a great Russian army some day swarming through the Khyber pass on to the plains of India in an effort to make that peninsula a part of the Muscovite dominions.
Fixed by Commission.
"To combat this possibility Great Britain sought to encourage a strong Afghan state as a buffer. By 1885 she induced Russia to join her in the formation of a Russo-Afghan boundary commission which settled on the Oxus as the boundary between the two countries, for some 680 miles of its length. Since then there have been battles of British and Russian commercial agents, each trying to gain the ascendancy in Afghanistan; but the Oxus has remained the physical boundary between Russian and Afghan territory.
"The Oxus, or Amu Daria, as it is called locally, rises in the lofty Pamirs near the common corner of Russian, Afghan and Chinese territory. For nearly 500 miles it runs through a narrow, deep gorge. Then the mountainous banks fall back, and it becomes suddenly a river of the plains, a character which it keeps for its remaining 200 miles as the Russo-Afghan border, as well as for the final 500 miles during which it strikes across the Bokharan and Khlivan plains to the Sea of Aral.
"On the Bokharan side, the Oxus valley, after the river leaves its gorge, is more fertile than on the Afghan side. Reed swamps border the stream on the latter side. Then comes a strip of willow and tamarisk jungle which extends to the edge of the flood plain where the elevated desert begins. There is much game in this jungle, and even tigers. At places, however, the Afghans have cleared the immediate river valley, have constructed irrigation works and carefully cultivate the land.
"The world has learned but few details of happenings in the Oxus valley in recent years. Afghanistan is a self-elected hermit, a buffer for news as well as for politics; and little information has leaked out through Soviet Russia. Before the World War Russia had built the long Trans-Caspian railway through her southern Asiatic dominions and had run one branch line to the non-Oxus border of Afghanistan near the northeastern corner of Persia.
Frowns on Railroad.
"A second branch was under construction from Bokhara to the Oxus, and for the past few years this road has been shown on maps as completed through Kalif on the Oxus, along the river to Termez, about midway of the northern Afghan border. Recent British information, however, was to the effect that the road would be completed early this year. The report of a Russian-Afghan clash about coincided with the supposed time of completion of the road. The statement that the Afghan post seized was on an island points, too, to the Kalif-Termez region, where the river's biggest island is situated. It is even asserted that the capture of the island is preliminary to the bridging of the Oxus and the extension of the railway into present Afghan territory. So far the Amir of Afghanistan has stood adamant against all suggestions that his territory be 'dedied' with rails.
"At Kalif is the most used Oxus ferry. Horsepower is employed in this ferry in a unique way. From the front of a large flat-boat two poles extend out over the water. A rope is suspended from the end of each pole and tied to a belly-band, passed around a horse. Thus the ferry supports the animals, and they, swimming at ease, tow the loaded boat from bank to bank.
"At Kalif the Oxus has hard banks on both sides and the stream maintains a permanent width of about 540 yards. Elsewhere the river varies greatly with the seasons. In flood it is from 1,000 yards to a mile wide. Its winter width is much less. River steamers ascend the stream to the Merv-Bokhara railway bridge about 180 miles downstream from the Afghan boundary, and have been an important factor in Russia's transportation system in southwestern Asia."

"The Red and Black staff visited The Daily Union-Herald Tuesday afternoon. Mr. Chappellear explained the many different parts of the machinery and the type. The linotype was first inspected and proved to be a very complicated machine. Each one received a line o' type with his name on. Also each one received a 'burn' when he was given the line. The type, pictures, printing machine and stamping machine were other interesting features. We hope to go to the Dispatch office some time in the near future."

AMUSEMENTS
Gregory La Cava makes his debut as a Paramount director at the Met theater on Monday when "Womanhandled," with Richard Dix as the star, supported by Esther Ralston, opens.
This combination promises to be an extremely happy one, in view of the success Dix and Miss Ralston made of "The Lucky Devil" and the splendid work of Mr. La Cava in supervising the rapid-fire action and thrills of that picture and Dix's previous production, "The Shock Punch."
"Womanhandled," adapted for the screen by Luther Reed from the Saturday Evening Post story of the same name by Arthur Stringer, author of "Manhandled" ("Womanhandled"), is a farce comedy of modern western ranch life, in which an effete young man of New York goes to "the great open spaces" of his uncle's ranch to absorb western ruggedness and virility—all this because the girl of his heart loves real "he-men."
The ranch turns out to be next door to a good-sized town; there are no horses, the cattle being rounded up by automobiles. Then the girl arrives to see her sweetheart at the same time an "Artists and Models" company hops off the train and pays a visit to the ranch.
The laughs in the story are everything that the situation suggests. Moreover, the plot winds up with a real thriller of a cattle stampede.
Margaret Morris, recently seen in "The Best People," Edmund Breese and Ivan Simpson also have prominent roles in the cast.

Infants Suffer When Mother Dies in Well
Recently Juho Lukkarienen, a crofter or small farmer in the village of Askola in Kihitelysvaara, Finland, went to Aglajarvi to do lumbering work. He left at home besides his wife their three daughters, the eldest about six years, and the youngest one year old. A little later the wife while drawing water from a well fell headlong in and could not get out. The children being left alone and unprotected, the cottage became colder and colder. Only on the fourth day was the oldest girl successful in making a fire in the fireplace. Then she melted snow in a pot and mixed rye meal with the water. With this the children kept themselves alive. There were six cows in the cowshed, but they got neither food nor water. On the sixth day a neighbor's wife went to find out why she had seen no sign of life from Lukkarienen's cottage. In the yard she found the frozen corpse of Mrs. Lukkarienen with her head up to the shoulders in the well. Of the children all were half frozen and half starved.

Getting Good Out of Evil

We sometimes learn more from the sight of evil than from an example of good; and it is well to accustom ourselves to profit by the evil which is so common, while that which is good is so rare.—Pascal.

Disturbed by Trifles

Life is a tender thing and easily molested. The smallest and slightest impediments are the most piercing; and as little letters most tire the eyes, so do little affairs most disturb us.—Montaigne.

Window Treatment

By Grace Margaret Wilson

CORRECT treatment of windows is an important factor in achieving a room of beauty. This is easily demonstrated by the striking difference in the appearance of a room, before and after it is curtained. But window-treatment refers not alone to curtaining. Correct color treatment for woodwork is just as essential.

While ivory or white paint is the usual standard for interior woodwork in the modern home, a taste is rapidly developing for gayer colors in the wood trim of any room excepting, perhaps, the library or formal drawing-room. Even the living-room—especially in the country house—may have its woodwork painted in tones of soft green or neutral blue. The old, stereotyped natural finish is no longer a hard-and-fast rule.

Recently there has been a flair for painting the baseboard, window-trim and doors a different color from the rest of the woodwork. Some very charming effects are thus produced. In a room where the walls have been painted a pale grey, and the wood paneling a slightly deeper tone of the same, the baseboard, doors and window-trim are painted French blue. Mahogany furniture goes well in such a setting. But there should be some brighter touches in the way of a gay-colored lampshade cushion-covers of a rich rose and perhaps a blue bowl or vase filled with bright flowers. The inside curtains should be of net or file lace, through which the blue window-trim can be seen. The valance and over-drapes should be of blue silk, if this is a living-room. Flowered blue cretonne or chintz may be used, if it is a bedroom.

In a sun-room or breakfast-room, jade green or Chinese red might be used in similar treatment of window-trim, doors and baseboards, using a light cream paint for the walls. The jade or red should be repeated in the rug, laid on a black-painted floor, and the furniture should be painted to match, with touches of black. The windows might have glass-curtains of sheer cream net, and a valance and side-drapes of flowered silk, in which the red or green predominates.

A lovely color-scheme for a young girl's bedroom would be daffodil yellow and pale rose. The latter color may be used on the walls, while all the woodwork, including the window-trim and doors, would be painted yellow.

The doors might be decorated with a stenciled design of baskets or garlands of pink roses. The furniture should be painted yellow to match the woodwork, with stenciled floral design in rose, green, blue and yellow. A silk valance of a deeper rose than the walls, over cream file lace glass-curtains would complete the window dress.

Different types of windows must be carefully studied for the best effect. The painting and window may be of the whole.

CHILDREN KILLED BY AUTOMOBILES

Many Drivers Are Careless in Residential and Outlying Districts.

Approximately 31 per cent of all persons killed by automobiles are children under fifteen years of age. Many drivers are careful on congested business streets, but careless in residential and other districts where children are numerous.

In spite of the danger, many children make the street their playground, or in chasing each other or a ball they may suddenly dash into the street right in front of a moving vehicle.

Watch Children Closely.

A driver should assume that every child on or near the street may dash suddenly in front of his car. You cannot tell by looking at a child what it is going to do. You should, therefore, drive slowly and have absolute control of your car:

- a. Not only when children are playing in the street, but also when they are playing near the curb or on the sidewalk.
- b. When passing schools or playgrounds.
- c. When approaching youngsters who are "hitching a ride" on the vehicle ahead.
- d. When passing ice wagons and street sprinklers.
- e. When passing any hill that may be used for coasting, in winter.

Timely Suggestions.

- Drivers should remember the following:
 - a. Caution your own and other people's children about the dangers of the street.
 - b. Do not allow anyone to ride on the running board, rear tire, or bumper of your car.
 - c. Persons on bicycles, or roller skates, or in carts should not be permitted to hitch on your car.
 - d. It is bad practice to give children a "lift" to and from school because it encourages them to stand in the street while hailing. Such encouragement by motorists promotes a hazard to the children and to all motorists.
- In many communities school children are being taught "safety." Automobile drivers should co-operate in this good work and take every precaution to prevent accidents to children.
- If you expect other persons to avoid injuring your children, you should take care not to injure the children of others.

Some Worry in Getting Gas Into a Vacuum Tank

Motorists who run out of gas on the road frequently have trouble in getting gas into the vacuum tank which has run dry. If the driver stalled on the road finds himself without a funnel or is unable to remove the filler plug from the vacuum tank, he need not worry. "It is unnecessary to refill a vacuum tank manually," says a bulletin issued by the mechanical first aid department of the Chicago Motor club. "If the engine is cranked by hand or by means of the starter, suction will act upon the fuel in the main tank and refill the vacuum tank. One precaution is necessary: The throttle should be closed. If this is not done the engine will suck air through the carburetor instead of through the vacuum suction pipe."

Slow Driver Is Menace to Traffic on Highways

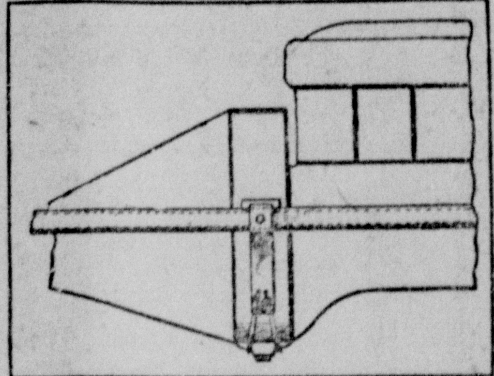

One of the greatest menaces to traffic on the streets, boulevards and even on country highways, is the slow driver cruising down the center of the thoroughfare. "The Rules of the Road" require all slow-moving traffic—whether passenger automobile, truck or bus, to keep to the right near the curb. This rule is violated every day, and all the time. Everywhere may be found the slow traveler, creeping down the middle of the driveway, blocking traffic and actually endangering the lives of others.

Did You Know That—

An engine will knock if the spark gap at the distributor is too wide? The supercharger is being manufactured by a large electrical equipment company? Reduction in wind resistance has resulted in adding ten miles per hour in speed to one of the latest sport closed jobs? One camshaft will operate all the valves of a V-eight engine if one block of cylinders is set slightly ahead of the other?

Support for Crank Case Quite Easily Attached

The object of an invention of F. A. Gould and W. G. Baxter of Montfort, Wis., is to provide a crank case support specially adapted for attachment to certain light cars for supporting the crank case against downward movement.

Partial Side View Crank Case, Showing Support.

ment, wherein the support is connected to the frame of the vehicle and to the supporting arms for the crank case. This support is easily attached, and once attached, requires no attention, it is firmly held by bolts and nuts.—Scientific American.

Tire Wear Doesn't Show Score on a Speedometer

You cannot tell how many miles a tire goes by the score on the speedometer.

If you'll stop and think, there is a lot of tire travel that the speedometer can't register, for instance: When you back up; when you skid with your rear wheels locked, and when you have one wheel out of line that skews along the road like a bootlegger in tow of the law.

And while on the subject of poor wheel alignment I'll wager that not a day of your existence passes but what you see some car ambling along the street or highway with a drunken wheel or two. If you have an abundant sense of humor you can easily get a laugh out of the cars so afflicted, especially if they are piloted by those absent-minded drivers who sit up stiff and straight and let the world go hang.

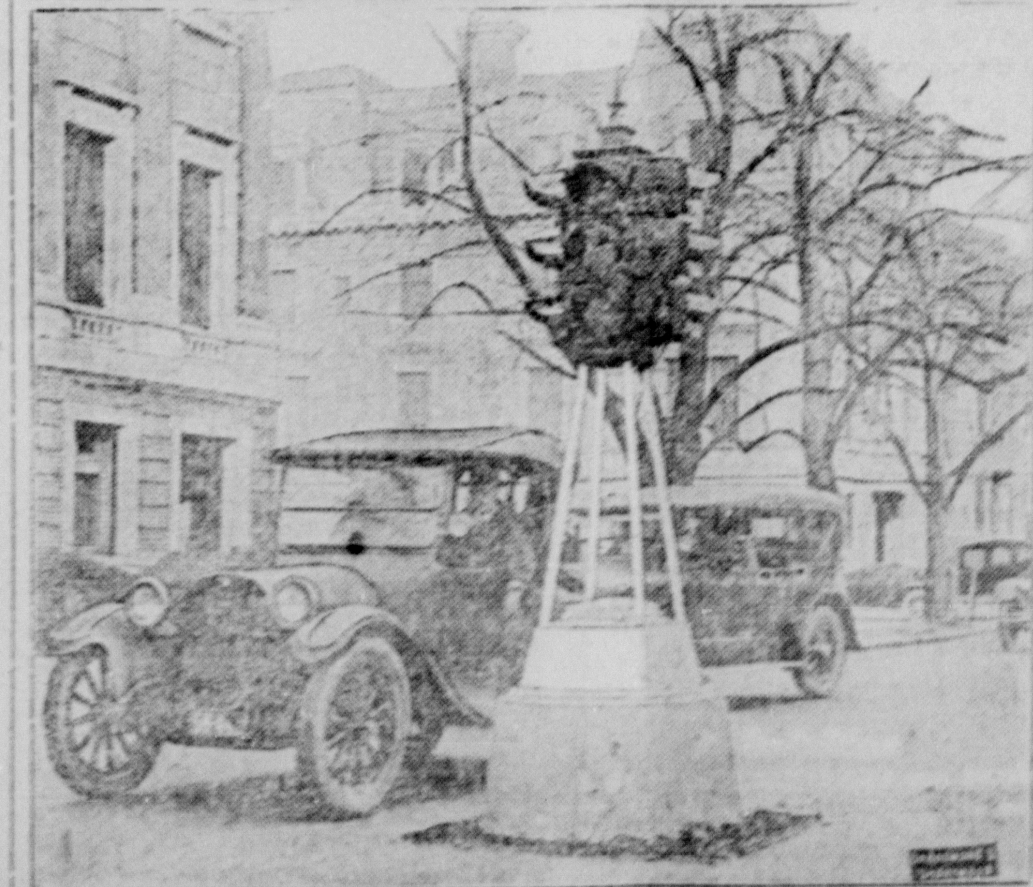

But it is really a serious matter—for the pocketbook, anyway. When the wheel wobbles, so does the tire. And that means that it covers a lot more territory than there is need of and scrubs off some tread besides. Then, when it is all over but digging down into your jeans for the purchase price of a new tire, maybe you wonder why you failed to get as much mileage out of one casing as from another. It is a safe policy to test out the wheel alignment of your car every so often. You may find something that will save you money.—Farm Life.

Magneto Setting Vital to Obtain Best Results

When setting a high-tension magneto it should first be seen that the proper cylinder is in firing position; that is, both valves closed and the piston brought up to the highest point, which can be ascertained by running a rod or wire through the spark plug or petcock opening.

When this point is reached the motor should be backed up one-eighth of a stroke, which is where the spark should occur when the spark lever is fully advanced. If it is desired to throttle the motor down very low, the spark plug points should be opened until they are fully one-sixteenth of an inch apart.

TRAFFIC SIGNALS ON WASHINGTON STREETS

In an attempt to better regulate Washington's rapidly increasing automobile traffic, experiments are now being conducted with automatic traffic signals installed at New Hampshire avenue and Eighteenth street, as shown in the photograph. Similar signals will be erected on the capitol grounds in the near future.

In the Epworth league the boys are planning the service and an interesting meeting is anticipated.

The Men's brotherhood will conduct the evening service Sunday. This is in accordance with the plans for Sunday evenings during April. Different organizations will plan and conduct an evening service.

The men will furnish the music and bring the message of the evening. If you are anxious to know what religious matters are foremost in the mind of the thinking laymen today, you will not want to miss this service.

An Alluring Little Bungalow

By Wilson Compton

Secretary, National Lumber Manufacturers' Association.

THE five-room bungalow is rapidly becoming the favorite type of residence, in suburbs or country, for the small family. Its space permits of a comfortable living-room, two bedrooms and bath, a small dining-room and kitchen. These cover practically all needs, while conserving the housewife's time and labor.

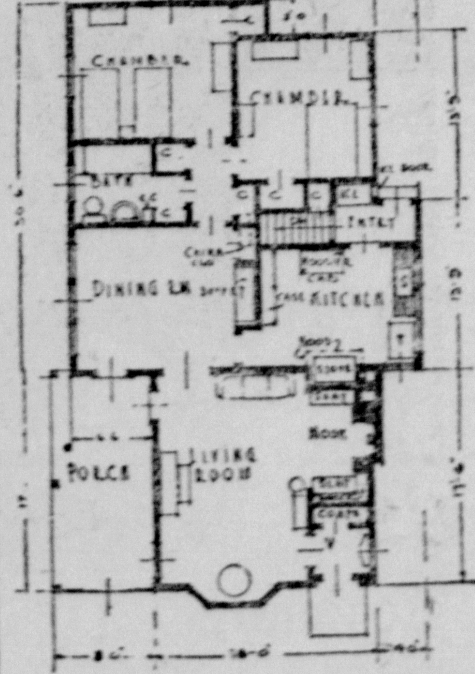

The Colonial bungalow of this size has an unusually graceful character. Its lines are simple and charming, and its interior lends itself easily to a commodious arrangement. The one shown in the accompanying sketch has a large living-room across the front of the house, with an attractive bay-window affording plenty of light.

This room contains, also, an alluring inglenook, with seats flanking the fireplace in true Colonial fashion.

Another Colonial feature is the entrance door with its fanlight and lantern, giving the little house an air of distinction. This door is recessed in its frame, to obtain some degree of protection. Incidentally, it achieves an interesting shadow effect.

At one side of the house, the kitchen is built out a few feet beyond the living-room, so that it can have both north and east windows. The dining-room is directly opposite the kitchen, on the other side of the house, and has an entrance from the porch. The bathroom is just back of this, and the two bedrooms are across the rear of the house.

Each has two exposures, insuring cross-ventilation, much sunlight and a pleasing outlook.

with trim in brick red or deep blue. Or, the house may be kept true to its Colonial character by painting it white or light yellow with green trim. If it is located near the sea, a lovely and appropriate color-scheme would be cream trimmed with a deep marine-blue. With most of these color-schemes the red brick chimney would strike a pleasing note.

The wide, roomy porch at one side of the bungalow gives it "balance." The latticed arch of the porch offers a graceful trellis for vines or climbing roses. The tiny "bull's eye" window below the peak of the roof permits the entrance of air and thus keeps the interior of the house cool in summer.

This bungalow can be placed on a lot of approximately 40 feet in width. With a background of trees and of shrubbery, its like beauty would be greatly enhanced. A little garden with a few flowering plants might be placed before one of its most charming features—The inglenook might be used for the bedroom.

PICKPOCKET, ARRESTED IN 1924

Due For His 16th Arraignment—Banker Hangs Tenaciously On His Trail.

By Owen L. Scott
(By Consolidated Press. Copyright 1926, by the Times-Star.)

Chicago, April 8. — David Stark, who has furnished a vivid living example of the speed of justice in this city, is at last in a cell.

Stark it was, who in 1924 picked the pocket of William B. Austin, prominent local banker, and who has been trying to get away with it ever since. Mr. Austin had a different idea, however, and has been unrelentingly on the trail of the thief.

Despite every effort that the banker could make to get justice done, Stark managed 15 continuances, and now a year and a half later is up for the sixteenth arraignment and hasn't despaired yet.

The pickpocket was caught red-handed by Mr. Austin and a school boy who was near him at the time he was robbed. The banker thought that naturally a quick disposition would be made of the case.

Then influences started to work. He belonged to a prominent club, and it developed that one of the officials of that organization approached him to give up the prosecution. Mr. Austin resigned from the club. Politicians intervened to aid the pickpocket. He kept changing lawyers, finally retaining a State legislator, whose presence in Springfield prevented his appearance in court here. For a year the angling went on, with the case showed off fifteen times by judges.

Now Stark has been brought to Chicago from New York and the banker, a year and a half after his pocket was picked, still is hot after justice. He is proving relentless in his determination to see that the pickpocket is punished.

Mr. Austin says that it all goes to show how even the meanest of criminals can escape punishment under the judicial system of this city.

This would not have happened in England.

HENRY FORD SUBPOENAED

Tampa, Fla., April 8.—(UP.)—Henry Ford has been subpoenaed as a witness in the trial here of John B. Leeds, alias Robert B. Riddell, charged with operating a confidence game in the sale of worthless stocks.

The subpoena has been sent to Ford's winter home at Fort Myers, Fla., by Sheriff L. M. Hiers, of Hillsboro county.

The trial is set for April 19 in criminal court.

Leeds is alleged to have borrowed $1,200 and given stock in a railroad now owned by Ford as security.

The stock is now valueless, according to officials of the local bank where the money was loaned.

The motor magnate's testimony will be sought to substantiate the bank's charge that the securities given are without value.

Beginning Early

A minister's daughter, age three, has begun to assist her father. The primary teacher was having difficulty with a new pupil when little Elnora came forward to offer assistance. She had taken her doll to Sunday school, and pulling her chair up beside the new pupil had soon hushed her crying.

Two weeks later another new pupil came. She, too, began to cry. Elnora left the room without a word, hastened to the parsonage adjoining the church, got her doll and was soon back in the little folks' room. The new pupil was lured into a corner by the young pastor's assistant, and her troubles were soon forgotten.

The Suspicious Characters

By H. IRVING KING

(Copyright.)

THEY met on the steamer going over. J. Percy was tall, robust, athletic, clear-eyed, clean skinned; he was a good thing to look at—and the women set down his age at about five years older than Penelope.

J. Percy was down on the passenger list as hailing from New Orleans; Miss Woffenden as coming from New York. None of the New Yorkers on board knew her, or had ever heard of her, but then, New York is a big place and, as Penelope casually remarked at tea one day, she really knew but very little about New York, though she claimed her residence there, having spent most of her time since the death of her parents on a ranch she had in the West, or in traveling abroad. She spoke familiarly, but not obtrusively, though, of the "very best" people in the very highest circles of American and European society.

In the smoking room J. Percy could talk familiarly of yachting and steeple chasing, of tennis and golf, and, if he was drawn out, would admit acquaintanceship with exceedingly well-known and important persons. But Percy was not in the smoking room much—he was generally in attendance upon Miss Woffenden. They had maneuvered their steamer chairs side by side and used to sit and talk and gaze upon the heaving sea.

So matters went on until the steamer was in midocean. Then came a wireless message, over the seas and through the air, to the captain of the ship informing him that a notorious swindler was thought to have sailed in his vessel under an assumed name and with a "faked" passport. So much leaked out. When the news spread through the ship Winters was sitting as usual beside Miss Woffenden. One of the ship's officers came to where he was sitting and said: "The captain would like to speak with you in his cabin, sir."

Then there was a sensation. In less time than it takes to tell it—almost—the news was broadcast that J. Percy Winters had been summoned to the captain's cabin. So he was the fugitive swindler, was he? People loitering about the door of the captain's cabin, and trying vainly to look as if they were there by accident, heard Percy remark as he came out: "I was rather afraid of this. However, it can't be helped now." That settled it! Winters stopped to hand in a message to the wireless operator and then rejoined Miss Woffenden.

"So," said Penelope, "you are a dangerous character, are you? Honestly, Mr. Winters, you don't look it."

"Suppose I were a—what those women have evidently been telling you I am; would it make any difference to our friendship?" he replied.

"Pray, don't press me too closely on such a delicate point, Mr. Winters," said she. "I may as well confide to you that I myself am not exactly what I seem. But let's change the subject." An acid-faced man in a clerical dress went by and looked at the couple askance—Rev. Caleb Mahan, going out as missionary to the Celebes. "His reverence does not seem to approve of us," remarked Penelope.

Great was the scandal at the continued intimacy of Miss Woffenden with the condemned Winters. It was decided that she was an adventuress with whom he had sed, and that they would both be arrested upon the arrival of the ship at Havre. When the steamer arrived at Havre and the boat came off from shore, sure enough—there was a sergeant of gendarmes and two of his men on her deck. All the passengers crowded around to see the adventuress put in handcuffs, making a little open space in which Percy and Penelope stood alone. But the sergeant went right by them and clapped the "bracelets" on the wrists of Rev. Caleb Mahan, missionary to the Celebes—alias Slippery Dick. Everybody felt swindled at such an anticlimax.

"And pray, Miss Woffenden," said Percy a little later at the hotel, "why was it that you took it for granted I was not the fugitive from justice everybody supposed me?"

"Oh, simple enough," replied Penelope. "As soon as I became—er—interested in you I wirelessly to New Orleans and found out all about you. You see I am in the customs service and make my bread and butter by taking trips abroad to look after ladies with smuggling tendencies."

"But weren't you curious to know why the captain called me into his cabin?" he asked. "Yes," she replied, "and I asked him, and he told me you had a business appointment to keep in Paris and before you sailed the captain assured you we would get in in time for you to keep it. He called you in to tell you that, because of unforeseen delays, you would not be able to make it."

Miss Penelope Woffenden, whose real name was Mary Robinson, visited several European capitals in the discharge of her duties, and at every capital she visited she was sure to run against Percy Winters. She is no longer in the customs service, but as Mrs. J. Percy Winters lives in the South, where her husband is a prominent cotton broker.

LAST MAN'S CLUB OF 34 IS CUT TO THREE BY DEATH

Stillwater, Minn., April 8.—The Last Man's Club, with a roster of thirty-four Minnesota Civil War veterans four decades ago, has dwindled to three. The death of Emil Graff, at St. Cloud, Fla., leaves only John S. Goff, St. Paul; Charles Lockwood, Chamberlain, S. D., and Peter Hall, Atwater, Minn., to carry on for the merry group that first met here July 21, 1885. All were soldiers in the First Minnesota Volunteer Infantry and annually since then, members in diminishing numbers have gathered here for a banquet. A bottle of wine, which has reposed in a bank vault since the first meeting, will be opened by the last surviving member to toast his departed comrades. Goff, Lockwood and Hall plan to gather here next July 21. The bottle of wine will be brought forth and placed on the festive board, but not opened.

Nothing New to Him

The lady reformer was at her best. "—and on the subject of female dress reform it is not too much to hope that the woman of the next generation will have pockets to put her hands in." The little gentleman in the frayed cuffs turned away sadly. "My wife has enjoyed the privilege for the last 20 years," he murmured.

Moth Killer

The smallest drop of ammonia sprinkled in the corner of a wardrobe will instantly kill moths. Its fumes are almost fatal for mice, beetles, cockroaches and all such household pests. It has no equal in removing obnoxious smells. When mixed with hot water and poured down a sink or drain that is giving off troublesome gases it is an excellent purifier.

x x x x x x x x
x HARTMAN THEATER.
x x x x x x x x

It is no exaggeration to say that Robert B. Mantell, dean of Shakespearean and classic actors on this continent, will hold a Shakespearean festival at the Hartman theater, Columbus, next week, which will also be his farewell engagement in Columbus, as he is making his final theatrical tour this season. "King Lear," "Macbeth" and "Hamlet," three widely different and great tragedies, and "As You Like It" and "The Merchant of Venice," two charming comedies, will be presented. And, to add a very special note of novelty "Hamlet" will be given in two different ways on Tuesday evening, April 13, in traditional manner—that is, with costumes and scenic effects always identified with the play and on Friday night, April 16, in modern manner—that is, with the dress and scenic background of 1926.

Mr. Mantell, by the way, was the first to give this tragedy in modern dress on this side of the Atlantic. At first he refused, but finally yielded to the public desire to see the play, that way, and gave it first in St. Louis, where it was received with such enthusiasm that he has since repeated it many times, and always to very large audiences. In the Pacific Coast cities of the United States also in Canada, it was warmly welcomed. How will Columbus like it?

"Merchant of Venice," one of the finest of all Shakespearean tragedies, will be the bill for the opening performance on Monday evening, also for Saturday matinee. "As You Like It" should prove a charming afternoon's entertainment for the ladies on Wednesday, with beautiful Genevieve Hamper as "Rosalind." "Richelieu" is a fascinating character, with his wonderful knowledge of men, his love of power and his remarkable assumption of kingly right. Saturday afternoon "The Merchant of Venice" with the combination of comedy and tragedy, as exemplified by "Portia" and "Shylock" will be played, as it is always a favorite with the students, young and old. "Macbeth," that Scotch historical tragedy, will bring the engagement to a close—and a fitting one, since Robert Bruce Mantell was born in Scotland.

Genevieve Hamper, who is co-star with Mr. Mantell, will also have an opportunity to play many different parts during the week. She is a favorite with theatergoers by reason of her beauty and talents. The entire supporting company is composed of players who have made a special study of Shakespearean drama and the classics. Each play will have its own proper and adequate setting and costuming.

ROAD TO BE IMPROVED

Federal Aid Secured for Maintenance of Highway Between Columbus and Circleville.

Columbus, April 8.—Here is good news for those who travel the road between Columbus and Circleville. Federal aid has been secured for improving the highway from Circleville north to the covered bridge. The highway between that point and the Franklin-Pickaway county line is in good condition, but south of the covered bridge it is in such condition that travel is anything but a pleasure.

George F. Schlesinger, state highway director, announced Thursday, that the highway is to be paved with brick, and that the work will start as soon as the plans can be prepared and the contracts awarded. The road will be at least 18 feet wide, and probably 20 feet, Schlesinger said. It is not only a state but federal route but is one of the most traveled highways entering Columbus.

Mad as a March Hare

March is supposed to be the month when hares run the field spasmodically in all directions, hence the frequency of this phrase. As "mad as a hatter" is another common expression. It is supposed to be a corruption of "mad as an utter" when "utter" means "viper"—so "mad as a hatter" really means "venomous as a viper."—Indianapolis Star.

Interesting Ladies

Lanvin is a name to endure with in the fashion world. Mme. Jeanne Lanvin is a mature, motherly type of woman whose pictures would say that she knows infinitely more about baby raising and how to cook spinach than to create dress confections of beauty! Queen Ena of Spain writes a letter full of all the court gossip to a country vicar's daughter each week. The daughter and the queen studied under the same governess when children, and the queen still says she loves this woman more than anyone else outside her family circle.

NO ILLITERACY IN 1930, DAVIS' MOTTO

The United States stands eleventh in illiteracy among the enlightened nations of the world, according to the federal census of 1920. Hughes B. Davis of Duncan, Okla., who was elected national vice commander of the American Legion for the year 1925-26 at the national convention at Omaha in 1925, thinks that condition should be eradicated and he is taking a big part in a nation-wide move to eradicate it.

Mr. Davis' work in connection with the elimination of illiteracy in the United States, and in Oklahoma especially, brought his name before the national Legion convention. He was elected unanimously national vice commander.

As head of the Oklahoma Americanism commission of the Legion and chairman of the affiliated organizations endeavoring to stamp out illiteracy in that state, Mr. Davis hopes to launch a movement in co-operation with the United States bureau of education that will result in "No Illiteracy in 1930."

As chairman of the adult education committee of Oklahoma, Mr. Davis plans to eradicate illiteracy in Oklahoma by reaching 5,000 illiterates annually. Adult schools sponsored by Mr. Davis' committee are called "moonlight schools and opportunity schools." These schools sponsored by the Legion are for adults who want some education or more education, and are not for illiterates alone. An effort is being made to establish the "moonlight schools" in every community or school district in Oklahoma where there are adult illiterates or adults who need such schools.

Mr. Davis began his World war service as a private at Camp Travis, Texas, on October 3, 1917. He was assigned to Company A, Three Hundred Fifty-seventh infantry. Then followed steady promotions until captain's bars glittered on his shoulders. He commanded Company C, Three Hundred Thirty-fifth battalion tank corps, overseas and until his discharge in May, 1919.

His Legion record is long and impressive and ranges from post commander to national vice commander. He was department commander of Oklahoma in 1921-22 and was alternate national executive committee man in 1922-23.

Largest Claim Awarded to a Disabled Veteran

The largest claim ever awarded a disabled veteran by the United States Veterans' bureau was received by Perry L. Desch of Lincoln, Neb. He was recently awarded $10,772.50 in insurance and compensation and, in addition, was allowed compensation of $157.50 each month as long as he lives.

The payment of the claim represents a seven-year fight in his behalf waged by department American Legion officials and Mrs. J. P. Jensen of Blair, Neb., Legion war service secretary in Nebraska. Desch is afflicted with muscular atrophy, known as "creeping paralysis," as the result of his service in the chemical warfare division during the war. There is no hope of cure, doctors say.

War Record Necessary

"Within a few years no man will be nominated for President of the United States unless he has a World war record," predicted Harry C. Wilder, New York state commander of the American Legion, in a recent address at Rochester, N. Y. A like prediction was made by the late President Harding, who based his statement on political history.

Matthews Honored

Col. C. S. Matthews, commander of Aviators' post of the American Legion New York City, was recently elected vice president of the newly organized International League of Aviators. The American unit of the Aviators' league will be Post No. 4 of the Legion and will be located at New York City.

YOUTH IS INDIFFERENT TO EDUCATION

PRESENT METHODS STIFLING DEARTH OF BEAUTY PREVAILS

Younger Generation Organizing Its Social Life In Its Own Way, Educators Are Told—Claude Bragdon, of Rochester, N. Y., Author and Architect, Says Theater Is Help—Play Spirit Needs Inspiration To Higher Flights.

Modern youth is cynical and indifferent under a kind and manner of education which is inadequate to its intellectual, emotional and practical needs, Claude Bragdon, Rochester, author and architect, charged Friday night at the second general session of the sixth annual Ohio educational conference, being held at Ohio State university.

"Our mental and emotional life," he observed, "like our physical, is subject to starvation and poisoning and our present state of disease in the world of thought and feeling is perhaps partly occasioned by the dearth of beauty everywhere.

"The soul of man, which craves beauty as its daily food, now finds itself stifling in a miasma of self-created ugliness arising from the ceaseless churning of mere dollars in fields, factories and workshops, and in those urban temples for the transaction of sharp bargains whose doors are always open and whose windows are always alight," he asserted.

"We of the passing generation have grown accustomed to these conditions because they are of our own making, and tho we suffer from them in obscure ways, we cannot cure them because we, ourselves, are infected; the consciousness which produced those cancers on the countryside which we call cities, polluting the air, poisoning the streams, prostrating the trees, killing the grass, filling the ear with horrid noises and the eye with ugly sights cannot reserve itself all at once."

On rare occasions when some desire for beauty agitates civic consciousness Mr. Bragdon observed, such desire is capitalized to the end of raising rents and taxes to pay for civic centers and sanitary suburbs less sordid, but hardly less ugly, than the old. Modern cities, he went on, are monstrous, ill-conditioned growths in which the evils of individualism are written in giant characters across the sky.

"The younger generation," he said, "is coming to organize its social life in its own way, sometimes in grotesque ways, rejecting much of the education, occupation and entertainment offered them by their elders, often to the latter's bewilderment and chagrin.

"But the initial error was with the elders. The one thing age has no right to do is to cast youth in the same mould in which it was cast."

Youth, he pointed out, is trying to find its own antidotes to ugliness and to learn cooperation. It is small wonder, he conceded that parents and teachers "view with alarm" the wild and wanton straying of youthful feet in fields forbidden to the elder generation.

So long as youth goes forward confidently and gladly, he declared, it probably is going in the right general direction, if not by the most direct route.

"Just now young people appear to be going forward confidently and gladly to a greater joy in life," he observed. "If this sometime assumes the aspect of too deep an immersion in such things as sex, jazz and boot-legger's gin, it may mean only that they have wandered, but are still hell bent for heaven.

"In seeking, however blindly, love and joy and beauty, they are serving a nobler God than the god of bargains. This they obscurely know is the reason why coercion, criticism, appeals, starvation and ridicule are powerless to divert them from their quest of beauty."

Youth's search for beauty, he insisted, is "not met and ministered to by the present educative system wherein schools are like boxes of silkworms, fed on professor-plucked mulberry leaves of learning, rather than like beehives in a garden of live blooms from which each pupil extracts his own particular honey which both feeds him and adds to the common store.

He has been sought on a number of murder and holdup charges.

United States Press
Association.

Granville, Ohio, April 10, (UP)—A book of poems entitled, "Poems of Friendship," recently published, is the work of a former Denison university student, Linden E. Brooks. While in school here Brooks was a prominent and popular member on the campus.

Mansfield, O., April 10 (UP)—Population at the Mansfield reformatory has reached the highest peak in its history, according to Superintendent T. C. Jenkins, 2122 prisoners being enrolled.

Columbus.—Passing for the first time the $50,000,000 mark, assets of the Ohio Industrial commission today reached a new high mark, according to State Treasurer Day. The fund which was created by the legislature more than 12 years ago, has earned nearly $2,500,000 in interest on bonds.

Yorkville—1700 employees of the tin plate plant of the Wheeling Steel corporation, will receive between $145,000 and $150,000 in pay, the largest amount since the end of the post-war boom.

Cleveland—Dorothy Trepozinski, 2, was just able to reach some "candy" lying on the table at her home here. Today she was dead, the result of swallowing 12 medicinal tablets, prescribed by physicians for her mother.

Cleveland—Formulating a list of rules tending to better liquor enforcement conditions, the Cuyahoga county association of justices of the peace went on record as against any home being entered without a search warrant. They are also against promiscuous night-riding, and they will furnish names of all dry raiders to the association and county prosecutor.

Columbus—Despondent over ill health, Earl J. Riffe, 46, hanged himself at his home. He formerly was a machinist for a local firm.

Columbus—A general tie-up of building operations loomed today with the scheduled walkout of 1800 union carpenters on Monday. Six other building trades unions are none too friendly with contractors over wage increases also, it was said. Carpenters are demanding an increase of from 12 to 25 cents.

PROSPECT FOR FRUIT IS VERY ENCOURAGING

Columbus, O., April 10 (UP)—Fruit prospects in Ohio are unusually good this year with full crops indicated in so far as early indications are reliable. The prospects are especially good for both apples and peaches in the section bordering on Lake Erie, it was announced.

Winter killing of peaches occurred in other parts of the state, declared Charles V. Truax, state director of agriculture, and is very noticeable in central Ohio. Apple prospects, however, he said, are uniformly good throughout the state with the exception of southeastern Ohio, due to drought there last summer, according to state agricultural statisticians.

KILLED IN QUARREL.

Toledo, Ohio, April 10, (UP)—A quarrel here resulted in the shooting of Abe Lubitsky, 19, who was fatally wounded by Albert Collins, negro federal prohibition agent of Cleveland. Collins, who had been detailed here for several weeks, arranged a "deal" with Lubitsky to purchase some alleged whisky for $70. But while Collins was notifying his office, Lubitsky is said to have struck the prohibition agent with a chair and fled to the street.

Collins chased his assailant and upon reaching the sidewalk, fired two shot, hitting Lubitsky with a bullet in his back.

DEATH OF INFANT.

Robert Gale, the four day old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rothe died Friday morning at 4 o'clock. The child was buried this afternoon in Forest cemetery.

NOT A CAKE

This photograph, taken of a bride of the Black forest district of Germany, is very interesting. What looks like a cake is a crown or headpiece 12 inches in diameter and 8 inches high, weighing from 6 to 10 pounds consisting of 10 rows of glass balls and beads in various colors and sizes embellished with small mirrors and other glittering ornaments. It is worn by all maidens at festivities such as church, family, christening, wedding and social affairs. A bride wears this from early morning until the church ceremony and wedding dinner and until ten at night, when she then housewifely garb to show her submission to her husband.

JOYOUS TIME LEGIONAIRES AND AUXILIARY

House Warming at Memorial Hall Proved to be a Most Delightful Affair.

The house warming given by the American Legion and Auxiliary Friday evening at the Memorial hall was a decided success, socially and financially. Nearly five hundred people were in attendance.

The auditorium and post room were artistically decorated in the National colors under the direction of E. C. Ebert, chairman. The guests enjoyed themselves playing cards and dancing. Preceding the dancing and card playing, Mrs. Carl Seitz gave a victrola concert.

Visitors were present from Columbus, Greenfield, Chillicothe, Lancaster and Kingston. Gene Fowler, of Greenfield, a veteran of the World's war and a member of Company G, 166th regiment Rainbow division, was present, and was cordially greeted by his many friends. Mr. Fowler, who was made blind in the service, took up poultry culling in vocational training, and has become an expert along these lines.

Prizes were awarded the card players in their several classes. The prizes won by the out of town guests were: Ladies, Mrs. A. J. Cahill, of Chillicothe, and gentleman, A. L. Segal, Chillicothe.

Bridge; ladies, Miss Elizabeth Dunlap; gentleman, Louis Holderman.

Five Hundred; ladies, Mrs. Elliott Crites; gentleman, George P. Foresman.

The High Jinks orchestra, of Columbus, furnished the music for the dancing portion of the program and was thoroughly enjoyed. At no time from the opening to the close of the evening's entertainment did the floor lack for dancers. Both the old and new dances were on the program.

Mack Parrett as general chairman, was ably assisted by Orin W. Dreisbach and John Bolender.

John J. Brehmer, the florist, donated an armful of carnations, which were in the post room decorations.

The prizes were donated by Senegrenner's and Brunner's jewelry stores, the Joseph Clothing company, H. B. Colwell's clothing store, Friedman's millinery store, Wittich's confectionery and the Crist department store and Grand-Girard's drug store.

The American Legion and Auxiliary are elated over the success of the entertainment and the welcome the public gave them. They wish to thank the press and the Seitz music store for their kind assistance in promoting and making the affair a success.

The members of the reception committee and the hostesses who received the guests at the hall were: Post Commander Joe M. Lynch; adjutant, Christian C. Schwarz; General George Florence, Sheriff Robert Young, Walter A. Downing, Charles Gusman, Charles Smith, Dr. H. D. Jackson, Joseph P. Noecker, Howard Orr, Lawrence Goeller, John Goeller Jr., May C. Tweed Suits Are Shown for Spring

Navy Blue, Beige and Pale Shades of Rose and Pink Are Favored.

By all the finery that flutters in the Southern breezes, gray and green are leading colors, especially for daytime wear. More shades of green than nature ever essayed to use in her decorative schemes are seen and in all popular fabrics. But that's not saying that other colors are out of the picture, notes a fashion correspondent in the Kansas City Star, for every observer of fashion knows that green combines delightfully with nearly every other color under the sun. Fashion will not overlook this opportunity to use other colors. The same is true of gray. The pinky beige lingers out of popularity and service to womankind rather than for any new note it serves in the mode.

Gray is one color that requires an ensemble of complete harmony. It brings us back to an increasing vogue for gray hosiery, something lighter than the gunmetal shade and partaking of fleshy tones so much a part of the nude-shade hosiery. Paris has not given up beige and flesh-colored hosiery by any means, but it must be conceded that many another shade may be worn and still be in good taste; even black hosiery has its sponsors by women who are regarded sartorially correct on every occasion. Importance in colors is given to chartreuse, which, by the way, is a much-abused word this season, as all shades of yellowish green now come under that name. Pale blue, lavender, pink and delicate yellows are very popular both in taffeta for evening and in wool for sports. Jersey, knitted fabrics and tweed all come in these delicate colors.

The new tweeds are as varied as the silks and crepes, and it goes without saying quite as lovely in their way. Whether you choose the safest of all shades, navy blue, or a flattering beige or the still more flattering pale shades of rose or pink, rest assured that fashion is with you.

The long tunic frocks for daytime wear are leaders in their particular fields of dress.

It was O'Rossen who made famous the boyish suit of a few seasons past, one that never has quite faded from the picture since that time.

Its tremendous popularity may be repeated again if the O'Rossen models meet with the same approval of seasons ago.

Black Crepe de Chine, Navy, Tan, Printed Crepe

Black crepe de chine and navy and tan printed crepe are pleasingly combined in a pretty frock for springtime. The tie and cuffs of the printed silk are effective touches.

Crepe de Chine, Voile, Chiffon for Lingerie

Crepe de chine, triple voile and chiffon are all much in favor for lingerie. Real lace dyed in deep ochre shades trims the classical flesh-pink underwear, while when more original colors are chosen, such as almond green, pale blue, mauve or yellow, the lace is often dyed to match the fabric. Black lingerie always enjoys a certain vogue, and in chiffon or georgette amply trimmed with lace it is exquisite this season. Inset points and incrustations of lace that are turreted or ruffled are very popular. Sometimes black lingerie is trimmed with black lace, chandilly or d'Alencon being the favorites, although many women prefer the contrast of light ochre.

The printed chiffon craze has also spread to lingerie. One of the prettiest sets seen in Paris this season was made of white chiffon scattered with a field flower design in blues, reds and yellows, trimmed with tiny minagies of fine black lace, giving that amusing little face at the hem of the chemise and knickers that follows the dress line.

WASHINGTON SPECIALS

Washington, April 8.—(UP.)—Modification of the Volstead act would be a good thing for prohibition enforcement, District Attorney Emory R. Buckner of New York told the senate prohibition investigation committee today.

Buckner argued that co-operation between states and federal government was necessary and that he believed that if congress would permit his state to define the alcoholic content of beverages the state would help enforce the law.

"It would be a perfectly rational step in prohibition enforcement to modify the Volstead law to dangle such a bait before the states to get their co-operation," he said.

"If the one half of one per cent provision of the Volstead act was eliminated and the state permitted to define what is an intoxicating beverage, I believe you would develop the necessary partnership between the federal government and the state."

Unless this is done Buckner said, present court facilities in New York state alone would have to be increased $75,000,000 a year by adding 150 additional courts to handle prohibition cases.

Buckner's testimony was given after George Brennan, Democratic leader of Chicago and Anton J. Cermack, president of Cook county commission, authorized publication of statements to the committee, pointing out increases in insanity and crime in their part of the country.

"Hearth Money"

"Hearth money," levied in England between 1653 and 1690, was a tax on domestic fires, and had to be paid to the king. The clergy had their incomes, also, by levying a tax known as that of "smoke farthings."

WAYNE B. WHEELER

Anti-Saloon League Leader In "Dutch" With Senator Couzens.

Washington, April 8.—(UP.)—Senator Couzens, Republican, Michigan and Wayne B. Wheeler, Anti-Saloon League leader here, are decidedly at odds, as the result of Couzens' refusal to preside in a committee room where Wheeler was visiting.

Wheeler came back today with a statement referring to Couzens as "the five per cent beer advocate from a dry state," and denying that Couzens made his hostile comment to Wheeler's face.

"Senator Howell, Republican, Nebraska, asked me to the meeting. * * * I was informed that the committee would be executive. I then left. Senator Couzens did not make the statement while I was in the room."

OHIO PHARMA-CEUTICAL ASSN.
CONVENTION
Columbus, April 8.—(UP.)—
The Ohio State Pharmaceutical Association in convention here this week, decided to:
Eliminate the position of assistant pharmacist.
Educate the people into distinguishing between pharmacies and "drug stores."
Wait until June before they decide on the legality of the new 3.75 per cent malt extract.
Ask a law to prevent the registration of new assistant pharmacists.
In defining the difference between a pharmacy and a drug store, the pharmacists explained a drug store is a place where package medicines are sold and a pharmacy is a place where prescriptions are filled.
The people must be educated to this difference, they declared.

NEW TORCH MELTS
STEEL UNDER WATER
Will Be Used to Open Hull of Wrecked Submarine.
New York.—A torch that can melt and cut steel at any depth under water has been perfected by the United States navy, and will be used in opening the sunken submarine S-51, now on the floor of the ocean off Block Island, Commander Ellsberg of the Brooklyn navy yard has told a reporter.
Such a torch is hailed as a valuable aid in cutting through the steel plates of submarine and submarine compartments. It was the lack of an adequately powerful torch that prevented the piercing of the submarine S-51 last fall, after it was rammed amidships by the steamer City of Rome in September. At that time acetylene torches were used, and they were practically useless when forced to pressure of more than 20 pounds under water.
The new torch consists of jets of hydrogen and oxygen which emanate from two separate sleeves to the tip of the torch. From a third sleeve comes compressed air. When the compressed air is applied at any depth under water it forces an air bubble to surround the hydrogen and oxygen.
Thus protected from the water, the fire within the bubble of air is injected into the steel. It usually reaches a temperature of 5,000 degrees Fahrenheit, according to Commander Ellsberg.
The steel plate melts. From the time the flame is applied the steel plate, usually an inch thick or less on submarines, can be cut at the rate of a foot a minute.
The navy has been experimenting on the torch for several years. When the submarine S-51 sank, the torch was in the experimental stage.
With the aid of the torch, it will be possible to get into the innermost compartments of the submarine. Holes will be burned in the hull of the submarine, as well as in the walls of the compartments, and the compressed air will be forced into the boat, thus driving out the water and making the craft more buoyant.
The bodies of 24 men are still in the submarine, it is believed, and these will be taken out probably before the submarine is lifted to the surface.

READY TO GIVE UP
MULES FOR FLIVVER
"As Braxton Beller was driving to town tuther day, with his wife and nine children in the waggin," related Toke Sagg of Sandy Mush, "a feller came ripping around a bent in the road straddle of a bull calf. The mules whirled, overturned the waggin, flung the folks out with a can of milk and twenty dozen eggs on top of 'em, and run away, dragging Braxton behind 'em. When he finally got 'em stopped and driv' 'em back to whar they'd left the waggie he found everything smashed and the family daubed with stuff from head to foot. Then whilst he was trying to sorter fix up things a little one of the chased mules kicked him and broke his arm. He says he's going to swap off the mules and get a flivver. He can have just about as much trouble in less than half of the time."
"Tes, but what about the feller that was ridin' the bull calf?" asked an acquaintance.
"I hain't the slightest My. Bear

WHERE RUSSIA HALTED FOR HALF A CENTURY
Oxus River Long Russian Afghan Boundary.

Washington.—The world is taking a new interest in the Oxus river, which figured in the war news back in the days of Alexander and his conquering generals. Recent dispatches report the seizure by Soviet soldiers of an Afghan post on the river. The region is described in the following bulletin from the Washington headquarters of the National Geographic society:
 "The Oxus river has the distinction of standing longer as a Russian boundary in southwest Asia than any other natural feature," says the bulletin "One of the outstanding bits of empire building during the Nineteenth century was the glacierlike but sure advance of Russia toward India, an advance that profoundly affected British diplomacy and kept British military men constantly on a nervous tension. Khokand was gobbled up in 1863, Bokhara in 1868 and Khiva in 1873. Some people had visions of a great Russian army some day swarming through the Khyber pass on to the plains of India in an effort to make that peninsula a part of the Muscovite dominions.
 Fixed by Commission.
 "To combat this possibility Great Britain sought to encourage a strong Afghan state as a buffer. By 1885 she induced Russia to join her in the formation of a Russo-Afghan boundary commission which settled on the Oxus as the boundary between the two countries, for some 680 miles of its length. Since then there have been battles of British and Russian commercial agents, each trying to gain the ascendancy in Afghanistan; but the Oxus has remained the physical boundary between Russian and Afghan territory.
 "The Oxus, or Amu Daria, as it is called locally, rises in the lofty Pamirs near the common corner of Russian, Afghan and Chinese territory. For nearly 500 miles it runs through a narrow, deep gorge. Then the mountainous banks fall back, and it becomes suddenly a river of the plains, a character which it keeps for its remaining 200 miles as the Russo-Afghan border, as well as for the final 500 miles during which it strikes across the Bokharan and Khlivan plains to the Sea of Aral.
 "On the Bokharan side, the Oxus valley, after the river leaves its gorge, is more fertile than on the Afghan side. Reed swamps border the stream on the latter side. Then comes a strip of willow and tamarisk jungle which extends to the edge of the flood plain where the elevated desert begins. There is much game in this jungle and even tigers. At places, however, the Afghans have cleared the immediate river valley, have constructed irrigation works and carefully cultivate the land.
 "The world has learned but few details of happenings in the Oxus valley in recent years. Afghanistan is a self-elected hermit, a buffer for news as well as for politics; and little information has leaked out through Soviet Russia. Before the World War Russia had built the long Trans-Caspian railway through her southern Asiatic dominions and had run one branch line to the non-Oxus border of Afghanistan near the northeastern corner of Persia.
 Frowns on Railroad.
 "A second branch was under construction from Bokhara to the Oxus, and for the past few years this road has been shown on maps as completed through Kalif on the Oxus, along the river to Termez, about midway of the northern Afghan border. Recent British information, however, was to the effect that the road would be completed early this year. The report of a Russian-Afghan clash about coincided with the supposed time of completion of the road. The statement that the Afghan post seized was on an island points, too, to the Kalif-Termez region, where the river's biggest island is situated. It is even asserted that the capture of the island is preliminary to the bridging of the Oxus and the extension of the railway into present Afghan territory. So far the Amir of Afghanistan has stood adamantly against all suggestions that his territory be 'dedicated' with rails.
 "At Kalif is the most used Oxus ferry. Horsepower is employed in this ferry in a unique way. From the front of a large flat-boat two poles extend over the water. A rope is suspended from the end of each pole and tied to a belly-band, passed around a horse. Thus the ferry supports the animals, and they, swimming at ease, tow the loaded boat from bank to bank.
 "At Kalif the Oxus has hard banks on both sides and the stream maintains a permanent width of about 500 yards. Elsewhere the river varies greatly with the seasons. In flood it is from 1,000 yards to a mile wide. Its winter width is much less. River steamers ascend the stream to the Merv-Bokhara railway bridge about 180 miles downstream from the Afghan boundary, and have been an important factor in Russia's transportation system in southwestern Asia."

Does Biggest Business
 The largest retail business in the United States, according to W. S. Gifford, president of the American Telephone and Telegraph company, is the telephone business. In support of this statement, he says there are about 50,000,000 telephone calls, or transactions, daily.

 These interesting young people recently honored this office with a visit and the current issue of their paper gives the following account of their "excursion."
 "The Red and Black staff visited The Daily Union-Herald Tuesday afternoon. Mr. Chappelle explained the many different parts of the machinery and the type. The linotype was first inspected and proved to be a very complicated machine. Each one received a line o' type with his name on. Also each one received a 'burn' when he was given the line. The type, pictures, printing machine and stamping machine were other interesting features. We hope to go to the Dispatch office some time in the near future."

Infants Suffer When Mother Dies in Well

Recently Juho Lukkarienen, a crofter or small farmer in the village of Askola in Kiihtelysavaara, Finland, went to Aglajarvi to do lumbering work. He left at home besides his wife their three daughters, the eldest about six years, and the youngest one year old. A little later the wife while drawing water from a well fell headlong in and could not get out. The children being left alone and unprotected, the cottage became colder and colder. Only on the fourth day was the oldest girl successful in making a fire in the fireplace. Then she melted snow in a pot and mixed rye meal with the water. With this the children kept themselves alive. There were six cows in the cowshed, but they got neither food nor water. On the sixth day a neighbor's wife went to find out why she had seen no sign of life from Lukkarienen's cottage. In the yard she found the frozen corpse of Mrs. Lukkarienen with her head up to the shoulders in the well. Of the children all were half frozen and half starved.

AMUSEMENTS
 Gregory La Cava makes his debut as a Paramount director at the Met theater on Monday when "Womanhandled," with Richard Dix as the star, supported by Esther Ralston, opens.
 This combination promises to be an extremely happy one, in view of the success Dix and Miss Ralston made of "The Lucky Devil" and the splendid work of Mr. La Cava in supervising the rapid-fire action and thrills of that picture and Dix's previous production, "The Shock Punch."
 "Womanhandled," adapted for the screen by Luther Reed from the Saturday Evening Post story of the same name by Arthur Stringer, author of "Manhandled" ("Womanhandled"), is a farce comedy of modern western ranch life, in which an effete young man of New York goes to "the great open spaces" of his uncle's ranch to absorb western ruggedness and virility—all this because the girl of his heart loves real "he-men."
 The ranch turns out to be next door to a good-sized town; there are no horses, the cattle being rounded up by automobiles. Then the girl arrives to see her sweetheart at the same time an "Artists and Models" company hops off the train and pays a visit to the ranch.
 The laughs in the story are everything that the situation suggests. Moreover, the plot winds up with a real thriller of a cattle stampede.
 Margaret Morris, recently seen in "The Best People," Edmund Breese and Ivan Simpson also have prominent roles in the cast.

Getting Good Out of Evil
We sometimes learn more from the sight of evil than from an example of good; and it is well to accustom ourselves to profit by the evil which is so common, while that which is good is so rare.—Pascal.

Window Treatment

By Grace Margaret Wilson

CORRECT treatment of windows is an important factor in achieving a room of beauty. This is easily demonstrated by the striking difference in the appearance of a room, before and after it is curtained. But window-treatment refers not alone to curtaining. Correct color treatment for woodwork is just as essential.

While ivory or white paint is the usual standard for interior woodwork in the modern home, a taste is rapidly developing for gay colors in the wood trim of any room excepting, perhaps, the library or formal drawing-room. Even the living-room—especially in the country house—may have its woodwork painted in tones of soft green or neutral blue. The old, stereotyped natural finish is no longer a hard-and-fast rule.

Recently there has been a flair for painting the baseboard, window-trim and doors a different color from the rest of the woodwork. Some very charming effects are thus produced. In a room where the walls have been painted a pale grey, and the wood paneling a slightly deeper tone of the same, the baseboard, doors and window-trim are painted French blue. Mahogany furniture goes well in such a setting. But there should be some brighter touches in the way of a gay-colored lampshade cushion-covers of a rich rose and perhaps a blue bowl or vase filled with bright flowers. The inside curtains should be of net or filet lace, through which the blue window-trim can be seen. The valance and over-drapes should be of blue silk, if this is a living-room. Flowered blue cretonne or chintz may be used, if it is a bedroom.

In a sun-room or breakfast-room, jade green or Chinese red might be used in similar treatment of window-trim, doors and baseboards, using a light cream paint for the walls. The jade or red should be repeated in the rug, laid on a black-painted floor, and the furniture should be painted to match, with touches of black. The windows might have glass-curtains of sheer cream net, and a valance and side-drapes of flowered silk, in which the red or green predominates.

A lovely color-scheme for a young girl's bedroom would be daffodil yellow and pale rose. The latter color may be used on the walls, while all the woodwork, including the window-trim and doors, would be painted yellow. The doors might be decorated with a stenciled design of baskets or garlands of pink roses. The furniture should be painted yellow to match the woodwork, with stenciled floral design in rose, green, blue and yellow. A silk valance of a deeper rose than the walls, over cream filet lace glass-curtains would complete the window dress.

Different types of windows must be carefully studied for the best effects. The painting and window may be—ing of the whole.

CHILDREN KILLED BY AUTOMOBILES

Many Drivers Are Careless in Residential and Out-lying Districts.

Approximately 31 per cent of all persons killed by automobiles are children under fifteen years of age.

Many drivers are careful on congested business streets, but careless in residential and other districts where children are numerous.

In spite of the danger, many children make the street their playground, or in chasing each other or a ball they may suddenly dash into the street right in front of a moving vehicle.

Watch Children Closely.

A driver should assume that every child on or near the street may dash suddenly in front of his car. You cannot tell by looking at a child what it is going to do. You should, therefore, drive slowly and have absolute control of your car:

a. Not only when children are playing in the street, but also when they are playing near the curb or on the sidewalk.

b. When passing schools or playgrounds.

c. When approaching youngsters who are "hitching a ride" on the vehicle ahead.

d. When passing ice wagons and street sprinklers.

e. When passing any hill that may be used for coasting, in winter.

Timely Suggestions.

Drivers should remember the following:

a. Caution your own and other people's children about the dangers of the street.

b. Do not allow anyone to ride on the running board, rear tire, or bumper of your car.

c. Persons on bicycles, or roller skates, or in carts should not be permitted to hitch on your car.

d. It is bad practice to give children a "lift" to and from school because it encourages them to stand in the street while hailing. Such encouragement by motorists promotes a hazard to the children and to all motorists.

In many communities school children are being taught "safety." Automobile drivers should co-operate in this good work and take every precaution to prevent accidents to children.

If you expect other persons to avoid injuring your children, you should take care not to injure the children of others.

Did You Know That—
An engine will knock if the spark gap at the distributor is too wide?

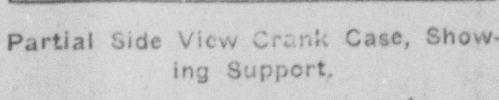

The supercharger is being manufactured by a large electrical equipment company?

Reduction in wind resistance has resulted in adding ten miles per hour in speed to one of the latest sport closed jobs?

One camshaft will operate all the valves of a V-eight engine if one block of cylinders is set slightly ahead of the other?

Support for Crank Case Quite Easily Attached

The object of an invention of F. A. Gould and W. G. Baxter of Montfort, Wis., is to provide a crank case support specially adapted for attachment to certain light cars for supporting the crank case against downward movement.

Partial Side View Crank Case, Showing Support.

wherein the support is connected to the frame of the vehicle and to the supporting arms for the crank case. This support is easily attached, and once attached, requires no attention, it is firmly held by bolts and nuts.—Scientific American.

Tire Wear Doesn't Show Score on a Speedometer

You cannot tell how many miles a tire goes by the score on the speedometer.

If you'll stop and think, there is a lot of tire travel that the speedometer can't register, for instance: When you back up; when you skid with your rear wheels locked, and when you have one wheel out of line that skews along the road like a bootlegger in tow of the law.

And while on the subject of poor wheel alignment I'll wager that not a day of your existence passes but what you see some car ambling along the street or highway with a drunken wheel or two. If you have an abundant sense of humor you can easily get a laugh out of the cars so afflicted, especially if they are piloted by those absent-minded drivers who sit up stiff and straight and let the world go hang.

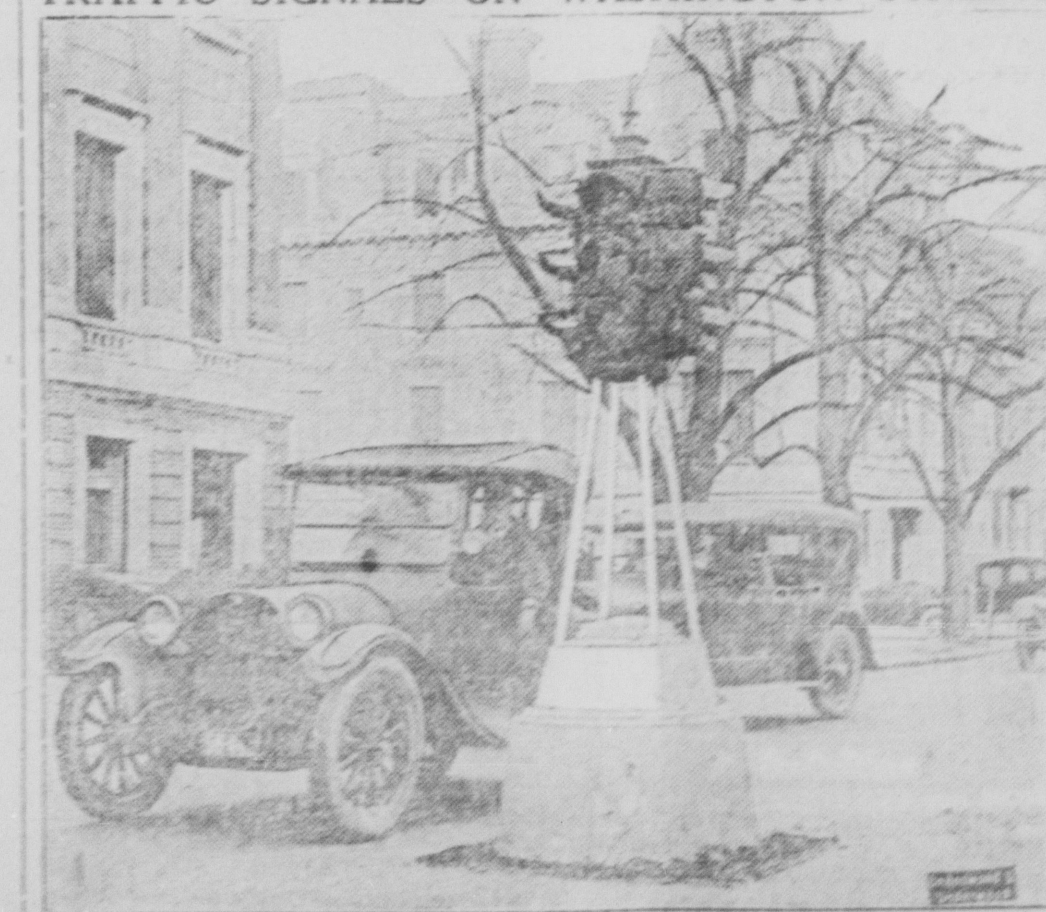

But it is really a serious matter—for the pocketbook, anyway. When the wheel wobbles, so does the tire. And that means that it covers a lot more territory than there is need of and scrubs off some tread besides. Then, when it is all over but digging down into your jeans for the purchase price of a new tire, maybe you wonder why you failed to get as much mileage out of one casing as from another. It is a safe policy to test out the wheel alignment of your car every so often. You may find something that will save you money.—Farm Life.

Magneto Setting Vital to Obtain Best Results

When setting a high-tension magneto it should first be seen that the proper cylinder is in firing position; that is, both valves closed and the piston brought up to the highest point, which can be ascertained by running a rod or wire through the spark plug or petcock opening.

When this point is reached the motor should be backed up one-eighth of a stroke, which is where the spark should occur when the spark lever is fully advanced. If it is desired to throttle the motor down very low, the spark plug points should be opened until they are fully one-sixteenth of an inch apart.

PICKPOCKET, ARRESTED IN 1924

Due For His 16th Arraignment—
Banker Hangs Tenaciously
On His Trail.

By Owen L. Scott
(By Consolidated Press. Copyright 1926, by the Times-Star.)

Chicago, April 8. — David Stark, who has furnished a vivid living example of the speed of justice in this city, is at last in a cell.

Stark it was, who in 1924 picked the pocket of William B. Austin, prominent local banker, and who has been trying to get away with it ever since. Mr. Austin had a different idea, however, and has been unrelentingly on the trail of the thief.

Despite every effort that the banker could make to get justice done, Stark managed 15 continuances, and now a year and a half later is up for the sixteenth arraignment and hasn't despaired yet.

The pickpocket was caught red-handed by Mr. Austin and a school boy who was near him at the time he was robbed. The banker thought that naturally a quick disposition would be made of the case.

Then influences started to work. He belonged to a prominent club, and it developed that one of the officials of that organization approached him to give up the prosecution. Mr. Austin resigned from the club. Politicians intervened to aid the pickpocket. He kept changing lawyers, finally retaining a State legislator, whose presence in Springfield prevented his appearance in court here. For a year the angling went on, with the case shoved off fifteen times by judges.

Now Stark has been brought to Chicago from New York and the banker, a year and a half after his pocket was picked, still is hot after justice. He is proving relentless in his determination to see that the pickpocket is punished.

Mr. Austin says that it all goes to show how even the meanest of criminals can escape punishment under the judicial system of this city.

This would not have happened in England.

HENRY FORD SUBPOENAED

Tampa, Fla., April 8.—(UP.)—Henry Ford has been subpoenaed as a witness in the trial here of John B. Leeds, alias Robert B. Riddell, charged with operating a confidence game in the sale of worthless stocks.

The subpoena has been sent to Ford's winter home at Fort Myers, Fla., by Sheriff L. M. Hiers, of Hillsboro county.

The trial is set for April 19 in criminal court.

Leeds is alleged to have borrowed $1,200 and given stock in a railroad now owned by Ford as security.

The stock is now valueless, according to officials of the local bank where the money was loaned.

The motor magnate's testimony will be sought to substantiate the bank's charge that the securities given are without value.

Beginning Early

A minister's daughter, age three, has begun to assist her father. The primary teacher was having difficulty with a new pupil when little Elvora came forward to offer assistance. She had taken her doll to Sunday school, and pulling her chair up beside the new pupil had soon hushed her crying.

Two weeks later another new pupil came. She, too, began to cry. Elvora left the room without a word, hastened to the parsonage adjoining the church, got her doll and was soon back in the little folks' room. The new pupil was lured into a corner by the young pastor's assistant, and her troubles were soon forgotten.

The Suspicious Characters

By H. IRVING KING

(Copyright.)

THEY met on the steamer going over. J. Percy was tall, robust, athletic, clear-eyed, clean skinned; he was a good thing to look at—and the women set down his age at about five years older than Penelope.

J. Percy was down on the passenger list as hailing from New Orleans; Miss Woffenden as coming from New York. None of the New Yorkers on board knew her, or had ever heard of her, but then, New York is a big place and, as Penelope casually remarked at tea one day, she really knew but very little about New York, though she claimed her residence there, having spent most of her time since the death of her parents on a ranch she had in the West, or in traveling abroad. She spoke familiarly, but not obtrusively, though, of the "very best" people in the very highest circles of American and European society.

In the smoking room J. Percy could talk familiarly of yachting and steeple chasing, of tennis and golf, and, if he was drawn out, would admit acquaintanceship with exceedingly well-known and important persons. But Percy was not in the smoking room much—he was generally in attendance upon Miss Woffenden. They had maneuvered their steamer chairs side by side and used to sit and talk and gaze upon the heaving sea.

So matters went on until the steamer was in midocean. Then came a wireless message, over the seas and through the air, to the captain of the ship informing him that a notorious swindler was thought to have sailed in his vessel under an assumed name and with a "faked" passport. So much leaked out. When the news spread through the ship Winters was sitting as usual beside Miss Woffenden. One of the ship's officers came to where he was sitting and said: "The captain would like to speak with you in his cabin, sir."

Then there was a sensation. In less time than it takes to tell it—almost—the news was broadcast that J. Percy Winters had been summoned to the captain's cabin. So he was the fugitive swindler, was he? People loitering about the door of the captain's cabin, and trying vainly to look as if they were there by accident, heard Percy remark as he came out: "I was rather afraid of this. However, it can't be helped now." That settled it! Winters stopped to hand in a message to the wireless operator and then rejoined Miss Woffenden.

"So," said Penelope, "you are a dangerous character, are you? Honestly, Mr. Winters, you don't look it."

"Suppose I were a—what those women have evidently been telling you I am; would it make any difference to our friendship?" he replied.

"Pray, don't press me too closely on such a delicate point, Mr. Winters," said she. "I may as well confide to you that I myself am not exactly what I seem. But let's change the subject." An acid-faced man in a clerical dress went by and looked at the couple askance—Rev. Caleb Mahan, going out as missionary to the Celebes. "His reverence does not seem to approve of us," remarked Penelope.

Great was the scandal at the continued intimacy of Miss Woffenden with the condemned Winters. It was decided that she was an adventuress with whom he had fed, and that they would both be arrested upon the arrival of the ship at Havre. When the steamer arrived at Havre and the boat came off from shore, sure enough—there was a sergeant of gendarmes and two of his men on her deck. All the passengers crowded around to see the adventuress put in handcuffs, making a little open space in which Percy and Penelope stood alone. But the sergeant went right by them and clapped the "bracelets" on the wrists of Rev. Caleb Mahan, missionary to the Celebes—alias Slippery Dick. Everybody felt swindled at such an anticlimax.

"And pray, Miss Woffenden," said Percy a little later at the hotel, "why was it that you took it for granted I was not the fugitive from justice, everybody supposed me?"

"Oh, simple enough," replied Penelope. "As soon as I became—er—in-terested in you I wirelessly to New Orleans and found out all about you. You see I am in the customs service and make my bread and butter by taking trips abroad to look after ladies with smuggling tendencies."

"But weren't you curious to know why the captain called me into his cabin?" he asked. "Yes," she replied, "and I asked him, and he told me you had a business appointment to keep in Paris and before you sailed the captain assured you we would get in in time for you to keep it. He called you in to tell you that, because of unforeseen delays, you would not be able to make it."

Miss Penelope Woffenden, whose real name was Mary Robinson, visited several European capitals in the discharge of her duties, and at every capital she visited she was sure to run against Percy Winters. She is no longer in the customs service, but as Mrs. J. Percy Winters lives in the South, where her husband is a prominent cotton broker.

LAST MAN'S CLUB OF 34 IS CUT TO THREE BY DEATH

Stillwater, Minn., April 8.—The Last Man's Club, with a roster of thirty-four Minnesota Civil War veterans four decades ago, has dwindled to three. The death of Emil Graff, at St. Cloud, Fla., leaves only John S. Goff, St. Paul; Charles Lockwood, Chamberlain, S. D., and Peter Hall, Atwater, Minn., to carry on for the merry group that first met here July 21, 1885. All were soldiers in the First Minnesota Volunteer Infantry and annually since then, members in diminishing numbers have gathered here for a banquet. A bottle of wine, which has reposed in a bank vault since the first meeting, will be opened by the last surviving member to toast his departed comrades. Goff, Lockwood and Hall plan to gather here next July 21. The bottle of wine will be brought forth and placed on the festive board, but not opened.

Nothing New to Him

The lady reformer was at her best. "—and on the subject of female dress reform it is not too much to hope that the woman of the next generation will have pockets to put her hands in." The little gentleman in the frayed cuffs turned away sadly. "My wife has enjoyed the privilege for the last 20 years," he murmured.

Moth Killer

The smallest drop of ammonia sprinkled in the corner of a wardrobe will instantly kill moths. Its fumes are almost fatal for mice, beetles, cockroaches and all such household pests. It has no equal in removing obnoxious smells. When mixed with hot water and poured down a sink or drain that is giving off troublesome gases it is an excellent purifier.

x HARTMAN THEATER. x
x x x x x x x x

It is no exaggeration to say that Robert B. Mantell, dean of Shakespearean and classic actors on this continent, will hold a Shakespearean festival at the Hartman theater, Columbus, next week, which will also be his farewell engagement in Columbus, as he is making his final theatrical tour this season. "King Lear," "Macbeth" and "Hamlet," three widely different and great tragedies, and "As You Like It" and "The Merchant of Venice," two charming comedies, will be presented. And, to add a very special note of novelty "Hamlet" will be given in two different ways on Tuesday evening, April 13, in traditional manner—that is, with costumes and scenic effects always identified with the play and on Friday night, April 16, in modern manner—that is, with the dress and scenic background of 1926.

Mr. Mantell, by the way, was the first to give this tragedy in modern dress on this side of the Atlantic. At first he refused, but finally yielded to the public desire to see the play, that way, and gave it first in St. Louis, where it was received with such enthusiasm that he has since repeated it many times, and always to very large audiences. In the Pacific Coast cities of the United States also in Canada, it was warmly welcomed. How will Columbus like it?

"Merchant of Venice," one of the finest of all Shakespearean tragedies, will be the bill for the opening performance on Monday evening, also for Saturday matinee. "As You Like It" should prove a charming afternoon's entertainment for the ladies on Wednesday, with beautiful Genevieve Hamper as "Rosalind." "Richelieu" is a fascinating character, with his wonderful knowledge of men, his love of power and his remarkable assumption of kingly right. Saturday afternoon "The Merchant of Venice" with the combination of comedy and tragedy, as exemplified by "Portia" and "Shylock" will be played, as it is always a favorite with the students, young and old. "Macbeth," that Scotch historical tragedy, will bring the engagement to a close—and a fitting one, since Robert Bruce Mantell was born in Scotland.

Genevieve Hamper, who is co-star with Mr. Mantell, will also have an opportunity to play many different parts during the week. She is a favorite with theatergoers by reason of her beauty and talents. The entire supporting company is composed of players who have made a special study of Shakespearean drama and the classics. Each play will have its own proper and adequate setting and costuming.

ROAD TO BE IMPROVED

Federal Aid Secured for Maintenance of Highway Between Columbus and Circleville.

Columbus, April 8.—Here is good news for those who travel the road between Columbus and Circleville. Federal aid has been secured for improving the highway from Circleville north to the covered bridge. The highway between that point and the Franklin-Pickaway county line is in good condition, but south of the covered bridge it is in such condition that travel is anything but a pleasure.

George F. Schlesinger, state highway director, announced Thursday, that the highway is to be paved with brick, and that the work will start as soon as the plans can be prepared and the contracts awarded. The road will be at least 18 feet wide, and probably 20 feet, Schlesinger said. It is not only a state but federal route but is one of the most traveled highways entering Columbus.

Mad as a March Hare

March is supposed to be the month when hares run the field spasmodically in all directions, hence the frequency of this phrase. As "mad as a hatter" is another common expression. It is supposed to be a corruption of "mad as an utter" when "utter" means "viper"—so "mad as a hatter" really means "venomous as a viper."—Indianapolis Star.

NO ILLITERACY IN 1930, DAVIS' MOTTO

The United States stands eleventh in illiteracy among the enlightened nations of the world, according to the federal census of 1920. Hughes B. Davis of Duncan, Okla., who was elected national vice commander of the American Legion for the year 1925-26 at the national convention at Omaha in 1925, thinks that condition should be eradicated and he is taking a big part in a nation-wide move to eradicate it.

Mr. Davis' work in connection with the elimination of illiteracy in the United States, and in Oklahoma especially, brought his name before the national Legion convention. He was elected unanimously national vice commander.

As head of the Oklahoma Americanism commission of the Legion and chairman of the affiliated organizations endeavoring to stamp out illiteracy in that state, Mr. Davis hopes to launch a movement in co-operation with the United States bureau of education that will result in "No Illiteracy in 1930."

As chairman of the adult education committee of Oklahoma, Mr. Davis plans to eradicate illiteracy in Oklahoma by reaching 5,000 illiterates annually. Adult schools sponsored by Mr. Davis' committee are called "moonlight schools and opportunity schools." These schools sponsored by the Legion are for adults who want some education or more education, and are not for illiterates alone. An effort is being made to establish the "moonlight schools" in every community or school district in Oklahoma where there are adult illiterates or adults who need such schools.

Mr. Davis began his World War service as a private at Camp Travis, Texas, on October 3, 1917. He was assigned to Company A, Three Hundred Fifty-seventh infantry. Then followed steady promotions until captain's bars glittered on his shoulders. He commanded Company C, Three Hundred Thirty-fifth battalion tank corps, overseas and until his discharge in May, 1919.

His Legion record is long and impressive and ranges from post commander to national vice commander. He was department commander of Oklahoma in 1921-22 and was alternate national executive committee man in 1922-23.

Largest Claim Awarded to a Disabled Veteran

The largest claim ever awarded a disabled veteran by the United States Veterans' bureau was received by Perry L. Desch of Lincoln, Neb. He was recently awarded $10,772.50 in insurance and compensation and, in addition, was allowed compensation of $157.50 each month as long as he lives.

The payment of the claim represents a seven-year fight in his behalf waged by department American Legion officials and Mrs. J. P. Jensen of Blair, Neb., Legion war service secretary in Nebraska. Desch is afflicted with muscular atrophy, known as "creeping paralysis," as the result of his service in the chemical warfare division during the war. There is no hope of cure, doctors say.

War Record Necessary

"Within a few years no man will be nominated for President of the United States unless he has a World war record," predicted Harry C. Wilder, New York state commander of the American Legion, in a recent address at Rochester, N. Y. A like prediction was made by the late President Harding, who based his statement on political history.

Matthews Honored

Col. C. S. Matthews, commander of Aviators' post of the American Legion New York City, was recently elected vice president of the newly organized International League of Aviators. The American unit of the Aviators' league will be Post No. 4 of the Legion and will be located at New York City.
